Mind your cGMP's

Western SC AIChE would like to thank Floyd Sauvé, a validation expert from Lockwood Greene, for his instructive presentation on current Good Manufacturing Practices. Floyd discussed cGMP's beginning with the catalysts for regulatory intervention in the areas of drug safety, purity, and efficacy. He discussed the evolution of the regulations into the current form, the intent of the regulations, possible future requirements, and penalties for not minding your GMP's. Also, thanks to all those attending for your questions and comments. The result was an informative, interactive meeting.

Meeting Notice!

Last January Dr. Larry Golan from the South Carolina Institute for Energy Studies talked to WSC AIChE about the institute, and the Energy Systems Laboratory (ESL) at Clemson. This month, the Clemson Student Chapter will be joining us to visit the ESL at Clemson. The ESL, a working power plant, employs students and collects data which is shared online to other power plants.

The ESL is affiliated with the South Carolina Institute for Energy Studies (SCIES) which is located in Clemson. Their main goals are to advance energy research and development, to share energy technology with industry, academia, and governmental bodies, and to promote energy education.

Energy Systems Laboratory (ESL)

- DATE: Tuesday, October 15, 2002
- TIME: 6:15 p.m. at SCIES or 5:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn Greenville for carpool

sec@wscaiche.org

When you RSVP mention if you will drive to SCIES alone or meet for the carpool.

Engineering Explorer Post

Dave Laursen, an advisor for the Engineering Explorers Post in Greenville, spoke briefly at our last meeting about how WSC AIChE can help. The Explorers, area high school students interested in engineering, meet at the Fluor campus twice per month to learn about engineering through activities and plant tours. The Post is calling on local professional engineering associations to plan activities that can demonstrate engineering concepts. For example, making ice cream using a plastic bag of cream inside a plastic bag of ice, a great demonstration of heat transfer with a treat for finishing. If you have an interesting activity or can arrange a plant tour, contact David Laursen at (864) 281-5981, or via email at david.laursen@fluor.com.

Domain Name

Thanks to our Secretary's hard work, we have a website. And now, Western SC AIChE has it's own domain:

www.wscaiche.org

Check it out for schedule of 2002/03 events and more!
