Have you ever wondered what types of materials are used to keep foods fresh longer on the shelf; or why different food applications require different packaging materials? If you thought a turkey bag was the same as a fresh produce bag, think again. Our guest speaker will enlighten us on some of the science behind foods and packaging, during our first meeting of the year.

Letter from the Chair

Welcome to another session of the Western South Carolina Section of AIChE. This summer two new officers joined the Executive Committee. The elected officers for the year are named above. Other officers on the Executive Committee are the following members:

PE Continuing Professional Competency (PDH Credits)

Did you realize that involvement in local AICHE meetings could count towards continuing education requirements of maintaining a PE License? According to SC Code of Regulations Section 49-603-7, 2 PDH units can be earned by actively participating in a professional / technical society. The requirements are that the licensee must serve as an officer, actively participate in a committee of the organization, or have at least 50% documented attendance at meetings held not less than 8 times per year.

We will be keeping attendance records at the local meetings and make those available to any member who is interested in earning PDH credits. If you are not able to attend meetings regularly, please consider becoming an officer or part of the executive committee.
